Hakone's treasure trove of Asian art

Okada Museum of Art has a wonderful collection of Japanese, Korean and Chinese art. There are roughly 450 important artworks – dating from antiquity up to the modernera - housed in this ultra-modern five-storey building.
While the museum is perhaps best known for its ancient Chinese bronzes, and porcelain from the Ming and Tang dynasties, the giant mural which decorates the entrance, depicting Fujin and Raijin, the wind god and the thunder god, is a masterpiece of traditional Japanese art.
