Facility Overview

Built on the Nakatsu River, a tributary of the Sagami River, Miyagase Dam is one of the largest dams in the Tokyo area. Lake Miyagase, which straddles the village of Kiyokawa, the town of Aikawa, and the Midori-ku region of Sagamihara City, is surrounded by three areas: The Dam Site/Aikawa Park area, the Miyagase Lakeside Park area, and the Toriibara area. Each area has its own unique charms and flourishes in each season.

At the Miyagase Lakeside Park area, visitors can enjoy picnics and walks at the Keyaki Plaza, the views from the Water Village Suspension Bridge, and a selection of delicious foods while strolling through the Mizunosato Shopping Street. The Toriibara area is the perfect spot for views of the lake. The Toriibara Fureai House within the park is great for meals and souvenir shopping while enjoying different views. The Dam Site/Aikawa Park area is home to the dam itself, an obstacle course, and craft workshops.

Highlights

Unlike other dams in Japan, the Miyagase Dam regularly releases water for tourists and the dynamic waterfall is a must-see. There are various activities to enjoy amid the beautiful nature of the four seasons, as well as more than 500 events to enjoy throughout the year.

Details/Schedule

Release of water: Every Wednesday, second and fourth Friday, and second Sunday between April and November, as well as on other event days.
Events/activities: Please check the website and social media channels for more information.
