<Amusement>

The museum's collection of model trains and railway collectibles is said to be the largest in the world.

Hara Model Railway Museum

Explanation of Tourist Attraction

Hara Model Railway Museum was opened in 2012 in Yokohama, the birthplace of Japan's first railroad. The museum houses about 1,000 model railways selected from the collection of world renowned model railway engineer and collector Nobutaro Hara, as well as an extensive collection of railway items. The museum shows the development of trains from steam engines to electric locomotives. Its models are faithful reproductions of real world trains. Hear the clattering of the trains running along their tracks—they sound just like the real thing! Admission ¥1,000 for adults, ¥700 for junior high school and high school students, and ¥500 for elementary school students.
